New head girls cross country coach named at Glenbard East

Glenbard East High School special education teacher Tydra Davis has been named head girls' cross country coach, effective immediately. Davis has served as the assistant girls' cross country coach for the past seven years. She also is an assistant track coach.

"I'm excited about the core group of runners who are committed to the team and embrace hard work," Davis said. "We have a dedicated team led by outstanding seniors and a group of parents eager to be involved and supportive. I am looking forward to building a program based on the success and rewards of hard work."

Davis is a graduate of Glenbard North High School. While at Glenbard North, Davis excelled in track and cross country. She went on to run at Illinois State University.

Davis and members of the Glenbard East coaching staff will conduct a summer camp for runners in grades 7 to 12. This camp is run in conjunction with the boys cross country camp and is open to boys and girls in grades 7 to 12.
