Glenbard Superintendent's Advisory Council formed

As part of a continuing effort to increase communication between the community and officials in Glenbard Township High School District 87, a Superintendent's Advisory Council has been formed.

The new panel represents a cross-section of Glenbard's nine communities. It consists of students, parents, educators, and a representative of the business community. The council provides the community with an opportunity to offer valuable input into improving District 87.

The Superintendent's Advisory Council will:

- Provide Superintendent Timothy Hyland with thoughts and perceptions from the community.
- Provide possible names from the community for participation in district projects, i.e. strategic planning and legislation.
- Review district documents, i.e. community survey and annual report, from the communities' point of view.

The council will meet regularly to discuss ideas regarding everything from graduation requirements to students' involvement in community service projects. Dr. Hyland will seek input on a variety of topics and encourage council members to suggest topics for discussion.

Council members from Glenbard West High School in Glen Ellyn include parent Mary Ozog, student Brittany McGrath and faculty member Patti Landry. Representing Glenbard East High School in Lombard are parent Larry West, student Laura Kunberger and faculty member Brendan Gaughan. Representatives from Glenbard South High School in Glen Ellyn include parent Fred Romano, student Rose Truesdale and faculty member Pam Neunar. Council members from Glenbard North High School in Carol Stream include parent Tracy Hulett, student Tejas Patel and faculty member Erica Bray-Parker. Other council members include real estate agent Rosellen Hayner and Saif Qureshi, principal at College Preparatory School of America in Lombard.
