Student's book explores world of dragons, angels

Everyone now can appreciate Glenbard West High School student Rix Thorsell's creative way with words. The high school senior has had his book, "Dragons & Angels: a False Redemption," published. This imaginative work is the first in the Dragons & Angels series.

In a land where dragons are myth and the angels forgotten, evil seeks dominations. Paladins with swords of light combat the darkness but are loathed by those they protect. Imperial soldiers are commanded by corrupt, power hungry generals, while bands of resistance fighters clash against the forces of evil.

Meanwhile, Maurid, a carefree youth, lives with his uncle in a remote village, unaware of his past in this turmoil. However, as certain truths are revealed, Maurid must unwillingly embark on a quest to save the world from self-destruction. He will have to brave mountains, cross seas, encounter dragons, fight the armies of men and evil and stands against the angels to rescue humankind from annihilation.
